

Job Title: Commissioning Engineer

Location: London

Role Overview

The main role is to work as part of the systems team providing proAV commissioning services of installed equipment, including video/audio control functionality of the various devices.

Key Responsibilities

- > Commission systems in terms of their electronics, mechanics' and optics to meet the needs of client scope, using proven technology
- > Fault finding systems and resolve issues associated with design and manufacture
- > Physically setup elements of systems to prove the concept
- > Deal with all aspects interfacing of audio-visual systems into our client's buildings this will encompass both hardware and software interfaces
- > Perform on-site commissioning and configuration programming of our systems
- > Perform off-site testing to ensure systems are working at optimum levels and hold client witness testing if applicable to ensure they meet client expectations.
- > Liaison with other internal departments, clients and contractors
- > Represent the company with the necessary level of professional conduct and presentation
- > Complete training and manufacture courses to keep up to date with new technologies and functionality
- > Support Project Managers in delivery of proAV' ongoing projects

Desirable Skills

- > Possess a good underpinning technical knowledge of electronics and audio-visual systems
- > Organised and flexible with the ability to approach different types of tasks during the working day

Additional Skills

- > Good communication skills both verbal and written, being able to communicate with company executives to building contractors
- > Able to work independently and as part of a team
- > Ability to take responsibility
- > Competent to a high level of computer literacy
- > Ability to hit deadline and tight timescales
- > Ability to plan, prioritise and organise work

Further Details

Salary: Dependant on experience
Reporting to: Commissioning Manager
Department: AV: Commissioning
Hours: Full-time, 40 hours per week, flexibility required

Contact

Luke Adams
Human Resources

e: recruitment@proAV.com

t: 01784 487000

